

Create a quote. Check your profit.

Use ProfitQuote free for 7 days. No account. No card.

Start immediately

Open ProfitQuote and choose the free-use button. Your seven days start automatically when you enter the builder.

Create and send freely

Build quotes, review the figures, email customers and download PDFs during your free-use period. No signup is needed for these actions.

Create an account only to Save

Choose Save when you want a quote kept in your library for later retrieval. Your current quote stays intact while you register.

Your free-use clock stays the same

Registration does not restart the seven days. No card is required and free use does not turn into an automatic charge.

You approve every figure before sending. ProfitQuote supports your job knowledge; it does not replace it.

Your quote - the visual route

Follow these six steps. Save is optional while you are using the free period.

1 Open the builder

Seven days of free use begin. No personal registration details required.

2 Describe the job

Choose the job type, select the included work and add customer details.

3 Add real costs

Enter labour, overheads, materials, waste and access costs.

4 Review risk and profit

Check contingency, margin and the forgotten-cost checklist.

5 Send or download

Email the finished quotation or create a PDF without an account.

6 Save if you want to keep it

Create an account when prompted. Your quote is then kept in your library.

Save your work when you are ready

An account is for keeping and retrieving quotes. It is not required to start free use.

Choose Save

On the completed quote, select Save. The account prompt explains why registration is needed. You can return to your quote without signing up.

Register or sign in

Enter your account details. The quote, customer details, scope and figures remain available through this step. Failed registration leaves the draft intact.

Find the saved quote

After registration, the current quote is saved to your library. Open it later to view, edit, download or email it.

Set reusable defaults

In your account Settings, add business contact details, labour rates, overhead, markup, target margin and the appropriate VAT setting.

Before you Save, the current draft is kept in this browser. It is not an account library or a backup: clearing browser data or closing an incognito session can remove it.

Build your quote step by step

Use your real costs and review all assumptions before generating the result.

Job details

Select the trade and work included. Add notes, customer name, customer email and postcode. Review the resulting scope summary.

Job size and scope

Choose the relevant rooms or property scope. Where measurements apply, use metres or feet and check all dimensions.

Labour and overhead

Enter working days and the daily cost of everyone on the job. Include your own wage and a daily allowance for business overhead.

Materials, waste and access

Enter materials you supply, minimum markup, skips and scaffolding. Identify any customer-supplied materials clearly.

Risk and profit

Choose the risk, contingency and target profit margin. Select Generate Quote, then review the total and Quote Health.

Review, send and keep quoting

Nothing is sent until you choose Email. Check the customer address and all figures first.

Check the final result

Review scope, labour, materials, waste, scaffolding, contingency, VAT and margin. Check the costs checklist; ticking it does not add costs automatically.

Email and PDF

Email sends the quotation to the customer address you entered. PDF prepares a printable customer copy. Both are available during anonymous free use.

Save

Save requires an account and keeps the quote in your library. Your current quote survives registration. Signing up keeps the original free-use end date.

After your seven days

£5 pay as you go: one new quote. Starter: £19/month for 6 new quotes per billing month, no rollover. Pro: £29/month for unlimited quotes.

No setup fee or automatic charge at free-use expiry. Subscriptions renew until cancelled. Existing saved quotes remain available; opening or downloading them does not use another quote allowance.

Need help? hello@profitquote.co.uk